

AFTER WORK STUTTGART

Make the most of your downtime in Stuttgart.
www.stuttgart-tourist.de

Welcome to Stuttgart

We are delighted to welcome you to our region's beautiful capital. Stuttgart is the centre of a thriving economic region and is known for its trade fairs and conferences. It has plenty to offer on the tourism front too. Explore captivating car museums and the vibrant artistic and cultural scene, take in the breathtaking views from the world's first TV tower and enjoy the hustle and bustle on Palace Square at the heart of the city. There is a wide range of hearty Swabian food and drink to discover, and the many cafés and bars provide the perfect place to relax at the end of the day.

Schönen Feierabend as we say here in Germany
when the working day ends!
Your Stuttgart-Marketing team

Regal relaxation:
Palace Square
*in the heart
of the city*

Here in Palace Square (Schlossplatz), heritage meets modernity to give an atmosphere of elegance and style.

The magnificent lawns, as well as the surrounding cafés and restaurants, make the square the perfect place to sit back and unwind after work and before moving on to the bars and clubs. For those looking to burn off some energy, Schlossgarten park provides a beautiful backdrop for a jog or a walk, passing by some of Stuttgart's famous sights.

The heartland of Swabian cuisine

There is much more to traditional Swabian fare than the lentils and spätzle that people first think of.

The locals here enjoy good old-fashioned home cooking, fine dining and everything in between.

And you'll always want a second helping.
Take the truly irresistible Swabian apple fritter, for instance – no other dessert comes close. And in this city of wine lovers you'll always find just the right glass of something to accompany your meal, with many of the wines made right here in the city or in the surrounding vineyards.

Top of the shops: retail therapy in the city

The centre of Stuttgart has every kind of shop you could wish for – from the everyday to the exclusive – and they're all within easy reach.

The natural place to start is on Königstrasse, the city's main shopping street, which offers a combination of on-trend shops and relaxing spots to watch the world go by.

Peel off down any side street and you will find chic and quirky offerings – browse, buy or simply soak it all in and enjoy the buzzing atmosphere of this rich and varied shopping destination.

Stiftstrasse Stuttgart

This street of luxury fashion stores is just a stone's throw from the Collegiate Church (Stiftskirche) and the market square. Nearest station/ stop: Rathaus or Schlossplatz

Stuttgart Market Hall

Stuttgart's market hall (Markthalle) was designed by architect Martin Elsässer and first opened its doors on 1 January 1914. Now a listed building, the art nouveau structure comprises a large hall covered by a glass roof held in place by reinforced concrete beams. The market hall's fame has extended far beyond the city limits to become a much-loved architectural gem – not to mention a fantastic place for the locals to do their weekly shop. Even Stuttgart's top chefs can be spotted here in the early hours.

Dorotheenstrasse 4, 70173 Stuttgart
Mon – Fri 7.30am – 6.30pm / Sat 7am – 5pm / Sun closed
Nearest station/ stop: Charlottenplatz or Rathaus

Towering above the tracks

Stuttgart's train station tower – crowned by its defining five-metre Mercedes star – is one of the city's most famous landmarks. The tower was completed in 1916. Even if you're short on time, don't miss the chance to catch the view of the city centre from up here.

Mon – Sun 11am – 9pm
www.stuttgart.de

The mother of all (TV) towers

Stuttgart's Television Tower took 20 months to build and went into operation on 5 February 1956. It is an incredible 217 metres in height and its design inspired television towers the world over. A trip to the top is an absolute must.

Tower & panorama café: Mon – Thu 10am – 11pm / Fri – Sun 9am – 11pm
Closed Christmas Eve (24 Dec)

High on life

Running between the districts of Stuttgart-Süd and Stuttgart-West is the Karlshöhe, a ridge adorned with vineyards, gardens and public parks.

From the top, you can enjoy magnificent views of the city centre. Between 1889 and 1896, an association devoted to improving the city's appearance established a public park at the top of the Karlshöhe. And the parks on the north and south faces were created especially for the 1961 Federal Horticultural Show.

Opening times vary depending on the weather, on fine summer days:

Mon – Sun 11am – midnight

If the weather is not looking good, please check opening times by calling +49(0)711 674 4064

Visit www.stuttgart-tourist.de for more information.

Birkenkopf

At 511 metres, the peak of Stuttgart's Birkenkopf is one of the highest points in the city. Rubble from Second World War air raids was deposited on the hill, elevating it by more than 40 metres and earning it the nickname Monte Scherbelino (Mount Shard).

The walk up to the top of the Birkenkopf from the western side is steep but rewarding.

Visit www.stuttgart-tourist.com for more information.

Santiago-de-Chile-Platz

This square is situated 430 metres above sea level, affording spectacular views of Stuttgart nestled in its valley. Did you know there's also a Stuttgart square in Santiago de Chile?

To get to Santiago-de-Chile-Platz, take the U5 or U6 train or the cog railway, alighting at Haigst station.

Visit www.stuttgart-tourist.de for more information.

Killesberg Tower in Killesberg Hill Park

Killesberg Tower – a striking 42-metre-high structure of steel cables with four viewing platforms and two intertwined sets of stairs – forms a visible link with the other towers and viewpoints of Stuttgart. It is an important waymark on the route from the city to the forest, into the countryside and back into the city. Many paths and trails start and end at the tower. www.killesbergturm.de

Teehaus (teahouse)

The Teehaus in Weissenburgpark is well worth a visit for its art nouveau pavilion alone, which celebrated its centenary in 2013. Situated next to the park's official viewpoint, this elegant establishment also boasts an exquisite view overlooking the Stuttgart valley. The kitchen serves cakes, snacks, Swabian and international dishes, and can even cater for banquets and buffets.

Contact: Teehaus, Hohenheimer Strasse 119, 70184 Stuttgart
Tel: +49(0)711 236 7360

Opening times: Mar – Nov daily 11am – 11pm (at beginning and end of the season open only Sat, Sun and in good weather)

Visit www.stuttgart-tourist.de for more information.

From fine art to automotive heritage: the sights of Stuttgart

What started out as a stud farm in the 10th century has evolved into a beautiful city with a fascinating history and a high standard of living.

Over time, actual horsepower gave way to brake horsepower and the automotive industry for which Stuttgart is known today. The city's attractions cover everything from art and culture to groundbreaking architecture.

Many of the sights are unique to Stuttgart, making them ideal for those who like to 'see and be seen' in the evening after work.
